

System and Method for Mixing Fingernail Polish

ABSTRACT

A novel system and method for mixing fingernail polish within its original retail bottle, before its initial use, as well as, before all subsequent uses. A system and method of mixing and or homogenizing fingernail polish and or similar solutions in such a way as to limit the introduction of tiny air bubbles within said solution, which are commonly present after manually mixing, causing surface finish problems during application and drying. A novel and useful system for single-handed operation, featuring an automatic cycle start and mixing cycle control as well as being relatively compact and portable.
